An exceptional opportunity to acquire a substantial three-bedroom ground floor apartment, set within one of Royal Tunbridge Wells' most prestigious private residential areas. This impressive home is distinguished by its remarkable southerly-facing rear garden and forms part of an elegant Victorian mansion.

Hungershall Park is a highly regarded private enclave, developed between 1854 and 1867 to complement neighbouring Neville Park. The area is characterised by substantial period residences set within an elevated position overlooking a steep valley, with the open expanse of Rusthall Common to the rear.

The apartment occupies a significant portion of the original building and benefits from sole ownership of the principal entrance. The accommodation is both generous and versatile, with high ceilings and an abundance of period detail throughout.

The entrance hall, featuring decorative cornicing, leads to an impressive sitting room with a large bay window enjoying a southerly aspect over the gardens, as well as direct access to a double-glazed conservatory. The principal bedroom is equally well-proportioned, also featuring a bay window, while two further bedrooms offer flexibility for use as guest accommodation, additional reception space, or a study.

The kitchen/breakfast room is fitted with a range of modern units and integrated appliances, and the property is served by a well-appointed shower room.

A particular feature of the property is the stunning rear garden, accessed via the conservatory and wrought iron veranda. Extending to approximately 0.75 acres (unmeasured), the grounds include expansive lawns, mature specimen trees, well-stocked borders, and a partially walled orchard with vegetable garden and outbuildings.

Further benefits include gas-fired central heating, a detached double garage, and vacant possession with no onward chain.

Given the rarity of such a property, early viewing is strongly recommended.
