DESCRIPTION

The Southern Tudor wing of an original medieval manor house – which is mentioned in the Domesday Book. South Barton is Grade II Listed, being of architectural importance and presents white and lime rendered elevations, beneath a slate/tiled roof. A sizeable two storey in-keeping extension was added in 2012 and the property sympathetically modernised and remodelled at the same time. South Barton therefore boasts refinements for 21st Century living alongside original period features, including exposed beams, marble and cast-iron fireplaces and a plaster frieze incorporating the Bellew family crest in the sitting room. There are also notable eco-friendly features, which include air source heating and rainwater harvesting systems. Externally, the gardens are attractively landscaped and generally edged by a stone wall boundary with the lane below. South Barton is certainly a property which needs to be viewed internally to be fully appreciated.
