IMPORTANT REMARKS

VENDOR COMMENTS: One of the things we've appreciated most about living here is the sense of community. It's friendly without being intrusive – people say hello, look out for one another and are always happy to help if needed. There are residents of all ages, and everyone can be as involved as they want to be. Some people enjoy joining in with community activities, while others simply enjoy living here and keeping themselves to themselves. It feels like there's room for everyone. There are volunteer groups, including one that helps support the shared gardens, and the directors work incredibly hard with the management company on behalf of residents. It's clear that lots of people care about making this a great place to live. The gardens are a real highlight and feel like a hidden gem in the middle of Bristol. Whether you're sitting outside with a coffee, chatting to neighbours or joining Friday evening drinks on the picnic terrace, they're a lovely place to spend time. There's even a shared herb garden that everyone is welcome to enjoy. It's a warm, welcoming community and one that we're very grateful to have been part of.
