Occupying a pleasant rural position backing onto open farmland, close to the Devon and Dorset border, Axminster, with its mainline railway station, is only a short drive away. The Jurassic Coast at Lyme Regis and Seaton is within easy reach, as is excellent local schooling, including Colyton Grammar School.

Reputed to date from the 17th century, but not listed, this attractive detached stone cottage, part thatched and part clay tiled, has been refurbished throughout and now provides well balanced accommodation combining period character with comfortable modern living. Features include exposed beams, timber floors, double glazed timber windows and generous room proportions.

The grounds extend to approximately 0.78 of an acre and comprise pretty cottage gardens bordered by mature hedging and trees, enjoying a rural outlook. Parking is available to both the front of the cottage and near the triple garage, which has windows and a large loft or studio space. In addition, there is a timber workshop. Beyond this lies a particularly attractive natural area, creating a peaceful backdrop and a haven for wildlife.

SERVICES Mains electricity and water. Septic tank drainage (not tested). Oil fired central heating plus woodburner. Standard broadband up to 10 Mbps. Mobile coverage reported as good outdoors with EE, Vodafone, O2 and Three (Ofcom).
