This delightful property is quietly tucked away in the centre of the charming Exmoor town of Dulverton, looking out over the pretty 12th Century Church of All Saints. The town is known as The Gateway to Exmoor with many riverside walks on the doorstep and some lovely independent shops, cafes, pubs and restaurants, library, doctor's surgery, dentist, pharmacy, and a school. Recreation facilities include squash courts, all-weather tennis courts, football and cricket pitches.

The market town of Tiverton is approximately 12 miles to the south, offering dual carriageway access to the M5 (Junction 27) and Tiverton Parkway station, with direct trains to London Paddington in around two hours.

This beautifully presented property forms part of a Victorian brick and slate building, originally constructed in the late 19th century and sympathetically converted into a charming mews of cottages during the 1980s. The result is a stylish and contemporary home that blends period character with modern design.

The accommodation is light, airy, and thoughtfully designed throughout. The ground floor features sleek white tiled flooring with underfloor heating, creating a warm and welcoming atmosphere. The front door opens into a spacious entrance hall, complete with a useful storage cupboard housing the washing machine. There are two generously sized double bedrooms on this level, both served by a well-appointed shower room and a separate bathroom.

Stairs edged with glass balustrades lead to the first floor, where a striking open-plan vaulted living space awaits. The bespoke fitted kitchen includes a stainless steel sink, twin electric hob, oven, microwave/oven, and a two-drawer fridge unit. This stylish kitchen opens into a dining area and a spacious living room with windows overlooking the Church.
