Location

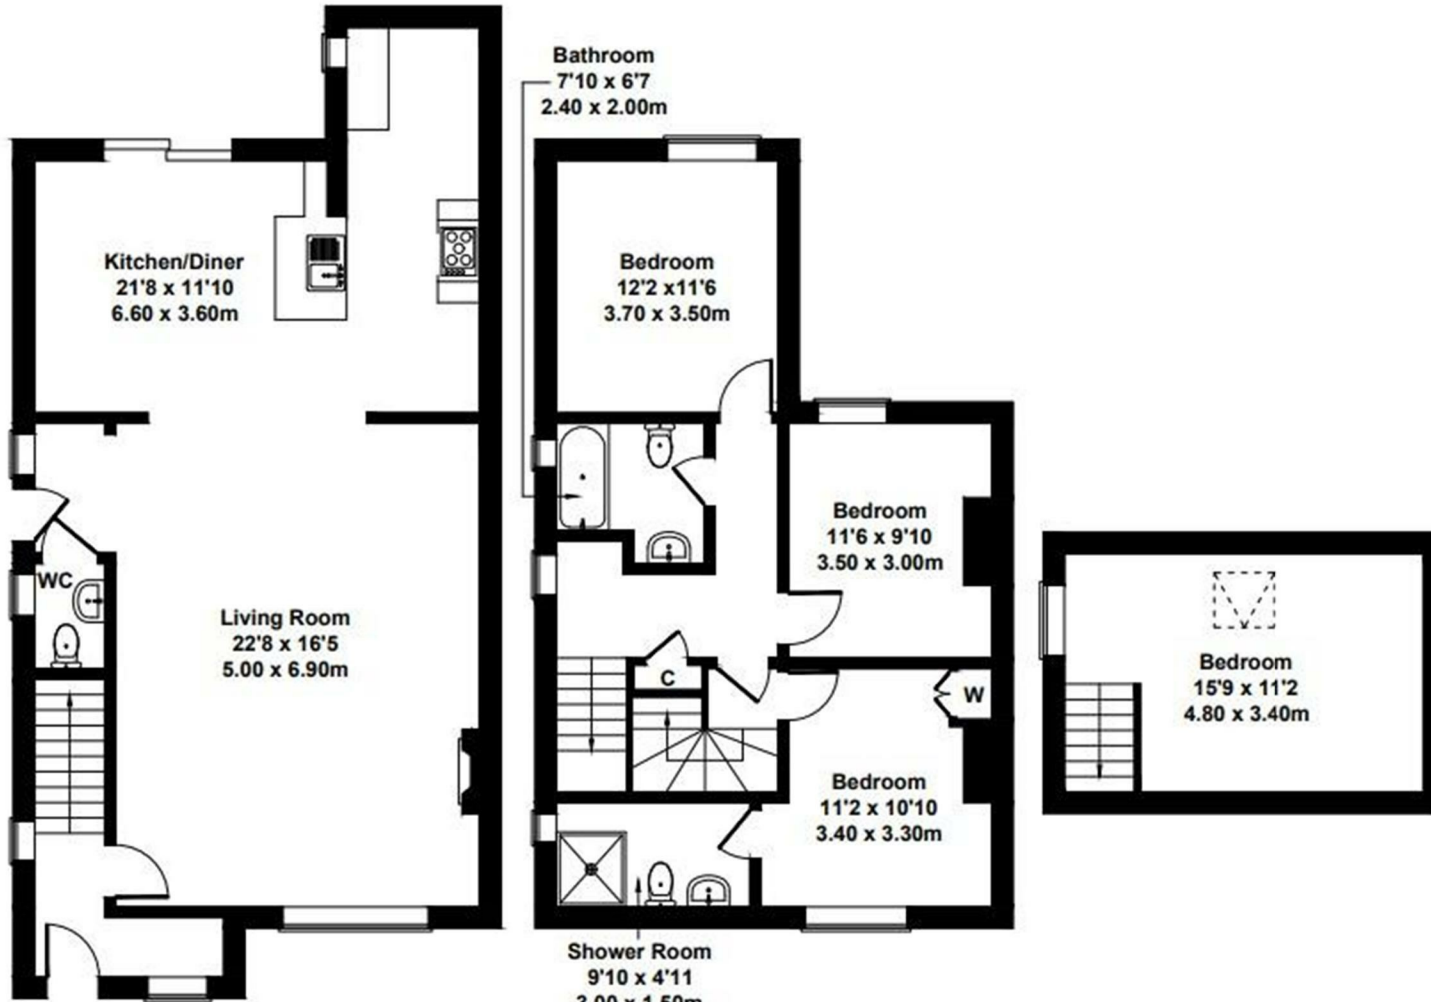

Reach is a small village on the edge of the fenland in East Cambridgeshire, England at the north end of Devil's Dyke, about 1.5 miles (2.4 km) west of Burwell. The village is the scene of the Reach Fair, one of England's oldest festivals, held every May Day Bank Holiday. Officially run by the Cambridge Corporation, and opened annually by the Mayor of Cambridge, it has been an annual event for over 800 years since receiving its charter in 1201 from King John. The village is home to "The Dyke's End", a public house which was saved from closure by the villagers. Primary school children attend Swaffham Prior primary school whilst secondary pupils usually go to Bottisham Village College.

The village is well-connected by road and public transport, making it convenient to access Cambridge and surrounding areas, such as Newmarket (approximately 10 miles away) and Ely (around 11 miles away). Cambridge North train station is approximately a 20 minute drive with connections into Cambridge & London.
