the 1990s, the number of people in the UK with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Act 1983, 1993). The prevalence of mental health problems in the UK is estimated to be 16% (Mental Health Act 1983, 1993).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems in the workplace. The Mental Health Act 1983 (1993) states that employers have a duty to provide a safe and healthy working environment for their employees. This duty includes the need to provide appropriate support and resources for employees with mental health problems.

The purpose of this paper is to explore the experiences of people with mental health problems in the workplace. The paper will discuss the challenges faced by people with mental health problems in the workplace and the need for employers to provide appropriate support and resources.

The paper will also discuss the need for employers to provide appropriate support and resources for employees with mental health problems. The paper will discuss the need for employers to provide appropriate support and resources for employees with mental health problems.
