Park

This beautiful home faces the wide green fields of Roundhay Park. The property is approached via a spacious driveway leading to a large double garage, providing excellent parking and storage solutions.

The house was built in 1905 and has been well maintained and tastefully modernised whilst retaining many Edwardian architectural features. Upon entering the home, a welcoming central hallway sets the tone for the scale of the accommodation on offer. To the front of the property, a magnificent living room benefits from generous proportions and an attractive bay window, creating a bright and elegant space ideal for both everyday living and formal entertaining. Complementing this is a substantial family room, offering a more relaxed environment and providing flexibility for use as a playroom, media room or additional reception area. A ground floor cloakroom with WC enhances day-to-day functionality.

At the heart of the home lies a well-planned dining kitchen, perfectly positioned to serve both family life and entertaining. The kitchen enjoys ample workspace and storage and is linked to the dining room by a serving hatch. Both rooms enjoy views of the back garden. A practical rear porch provides convenient external access.

The windows lighting the stairs have beautiful red patterned glass and are triple glazed to retain heat and protect the antique glass. The first floor hosts three double bedrooms and a single bedroom which is currently used as a study. All rooms are accessed from a generous central landing. The bedrooms are served by a large family bathroom featuring both bath and shower facilities. A separate shower room and additional WC provide practical convenience for busy family life. The first floor is completed with an Edwardian-style linen store room.

The second floor continues the theme of generous accommodation, offering three further double bedrooms, one with a vanity unit. This floor is particularly well suited to older children, visiting guests, or those needing dedicated home working space, with the additional storage area under the eaves presenting further potential for adaptation.

The large basement floor adds a further dimension to the property's versatility. A substantial utility room provides extensive laundry and household storage facilities, with access to the drive, back garden and an outside WC. A workshop offers excellent space for hobbies or home projects, and there is also a large storage room.

Externally, the property benefits from characterful mature gardens and the privacy expected of a residence in this established and highly desirable location. The professionally landscaped gardens provide excellent areas for al fresco dining and entertaining, children's games and a greenhouse for the keen gardener. The gardens combine to create a wonderful setting for relaxation, family enjoyment and outdoor entertaining.

Offering exceptional proportions, flexible living space and a prestigious Leeds address, this impressive family home represents a unique opportunity to create a truly outstanding long term residence.
