Hasells Courtyard

Hasells Courtyard comprises a small cluster of cottages around a central lawn with pretty flowerbeds. The buildings are in a traditional Suffolk style, with finely-detailed brick, rendered elevations and pantile roofs.

Long Melford, with its long high street and thatched houses, is well known for its antique shops and also has plenty of good restaurants, hotels and a good-sized supermarket. Its famous village green is only a short walk from the estate, as is one of the country's finest parish churches, the Holy Trinity Church, with its Lady Chapel and almshouses. The village's historic wealth, generated by the wool trade, is emphasised by having two stately homes: Kentwell Hall, a moated Tudor mansion, and Melford Hall, a fine Elizabethan house, both open to the public and host to many interesting events during the year. Nice walks are plentiful, with footpaths criss-crossing the surrounding fields, and there are two local golf clubs. The large towns of Bury St Edmund's, Ipswich and Colchester are also only a short drive away.

Cognatum Estates Limited provides the services and amenities shown below together with the maintenance, repair and insurance of the buildings, personal alarms, window cleaning and refuse collection. The cost of providing these services is shared equally between all properties.
