Bovey Tracey is one of South Devon's most desirable market towns, known for its vibrant community spirit, beautiful surroundings, and enviable position on the edge of Dartmoor National Park.

Often referred to as "The Gateway to the Moor," it blends the charm of a traditional town with the convenience of excellent local amenities – including independent shops, cafés, galleries, a health centre, and well-regarded schools.

Nature lovers and outdoor enthusiasts will find themselves perfectly placed, with immediate access to miles of scenic walking and cycling trails, as well as nearby destinations like Parke estate (National Trust) and Haytor Rocks.
