A bay-fronted Victorian-era home with warmth, character and wonderful potential, Lindum House enjoys a prominent position close to the heart of Long Sutton, placing the town's shops, cafés, everyday amenities and market-town charm comfortably within reach.

Set behind an attractive frontage, the property immediately hints at its period heritage, with elegant bay windows and retained character features creating a sense of history throughout. Inside, the home offers a welcoming blank canvas for its next owner - a property with soul, ready to be modernised and shaped into something truly special.

The accommodation has a pleasing sense of proportion, typical of its era, with rooms that offer flexibility for family life, entertaining or working from home. Replacement windows, installed in 2020, provide a practical update, while the remaining interiors invite sympathetic improvement, allowing buyers to preserve the charm of the home while introducing contemporary finishes to suit their own style.

Outside, Lindum House continues to impress. A private driveway provides parking for up to two vehicles, valuable feature so close to the town centre, while the private rear garden offers a peaceful space for morning coffee, summer dining or future landscaping.

Long Sutton is a well-served and characterful market town, with independent shops, supermarkets, schools, medical facilities, eateries, public houses, green spaces and leisure amenities all close by.

With its handsome Victorian façade, retained period detail, driveway parking and central setting, Lindum House represents a rare opportunity to acquire a character home with scope to create a beautiful long-term residence in one of South Lincolnshire's most convenient market-town locations.

We would describe the home as peaceful, lovely, and characterful.
