Deceptively spacious four-bedroom home with three receptions, sweeping driveway, garage and stunning garden. Moments to East Tilbury station, great school catchment, village charm, superb London connectivity.

Welcome to Princess Margaret Road, where first impressions say “charming,” but the grand reveal says “oh wow, this is HUGE.”

This is the kind of home that estate agents dream about and buyers try not to get emotionally attached to (spoiler: you will). Deceptively spacious? Absolutely. Think four proper double bedrooms – no “box room” fibs here – and not one, not two, but three reception rooms ready to flex around your lifestyle.

Working from home?
Playroom chaos contained?
Formal dining for your next “we definitely cooked this” dinner party?

The layout flows beautifully, with a ground floor bathroom for practical living and a first-floor shower room to keep the morning routine drama-free.

Outside? Oh, it gets better. A sweeping in-and-out driveway gives serious “arrive like you mean it” energy, plus there’s a garage for cars, bikes, or that home gym you’re totally starting next week.

The rear garden is your private summer festival waiting to happen — lawn for cartwheels, patio for prosecco, decking for sunset reels, and a summer house that’s crying out to become a bar, studio, or secret escape pod.

And for the commuters (or spontaneous London adventurers), you’re moments from East Tilbury railway station with direct trains into London Fenchurch Street station — meaning City meetings or West End evenings are effortless.

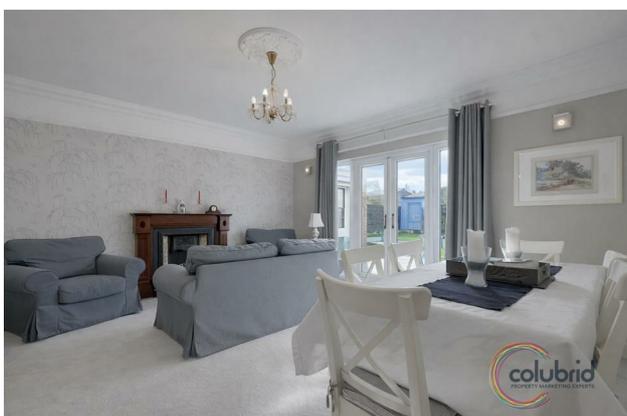

Families, take note: this home sits within the catchment for St Clere’s School, adding even more long-term appeal.

Need road links? The A13 and M25 are easily accessible, so whether you’re London-bound or coast-curious, you’re perfectly positioned.

Linford is one of those villages people discover and quietly hope no one else does. Tucked close to the Thames Estuary, it offers a brilliant blend of countryside calm and commuter convenience.

You’re moments from beautiful walks and wildlife at the Thameside nature reserves and the historic Coalhouse Fort — perfect for weekend exploring, dog walks, or pretending you’re in a period drama.

It’s village living with London links. The best of both worlds — and then some.
