Dalmally is situated in a delightful rural area of great natural beauty, some 25 miles east of the principal West Highland town of Oban. The village has a well stocked general store/grocers, a post office, pharmacy, doctors' surgery, primary school, community hall, a popular 9-hole golf course and a railway station, Dalmally being a stop on the Oban – Glasgow line. A rail sleeper service to London is also available from Tyndrum (10 miles).

Nashville is a quaint, traditional, stone built semi-detached cottage, situated in the heart of the village. Although in need of modernisation the property offers an ideal opportunity to be upgraded to the purchasers own personal taste and does benefit from an oil fired central heating system. Externally there is a good sized area of garden to the rear with a gravelled area to the front, with a paved pedestrian access off the road that runs through the village.
