Green Street

Tucked away along a peaceful cul de sac, yet just a stone's throw from the city centre, this charming period mid-terrace house enjoys close proximity to beautiful parks, including Bute Park, as well as the vibrant areas of Pontcanna and Canton. It offers a well-balanced layout with exciting scope for a buyer to make their own mark over time.

The accommodation flows naturally from the entrance hall into an open plan reception space, where the living and dining areas connect through a wide opening, creating a sociable arrangement suited to both everyday living and hosting. The kitchen sits to the rear with direct access out to the generous rear garden, while the addition of a basement provides valuable extra space for storage or future use.

Upstairs, three bedrooms- comprising two doubles and a single - are arranged off a central landing alongside a family bathroom, offering flexibility for those needing additional space to work from home or accommodate a growing household. The home is well presented and perfectly comfortable to enjoy as is, while also offering excellent potential for future development. A full-height attic provides scope for conversion, with space on the landing to accommodate a staircase, while the generous front bedroom, potentially divisible and the large rear garden further enhance the opportunity to extend and add value over time.

The property is situated in one of Cardiff's most convenient locations, within easy reach of the city centre and offering a strong sense of community. The nearby Principality Stadium, Bute Park and the River Taff provide excellent leisure options, while a range of independent cafés, shops and amenities can be found close by. Cardiff Central railway station is within walking distance, offering direct connections across the UK, and there are well regarded schools within the area, making it a practical choice for a wide range of buyers.
