Overall Description
This handsome semi-detached 1930's house, built in the half-timbered "Stockbroker's Tudor" style, sits in a corner plot down the leafy tree lined Bruswick Road and within the sought-after Brunswick Conservation area. There are currently three good-sized bedrooms, a bathroom and separate cloakroom upstairs, while downstairs there are two reception rooms, a galley kitchen and entrance hall. The property is in need of internal modernisation but does have considerable potential for for extension into the loft or to the rear, as has been done to other similar properties in the area (subject to the usual consents). The property has a driveway and garage and the gardens are mature and surprisingly private. This property is being sold with no chain.

Location
This property sits in a pleasant tree-lined location, within a conservation area, yet is very easily accessible to local transport links, schools, shops and other amenities. The Brunswick area is protected under Ealing Council Conservation guidelines and has a tight-knit, historic community feel that is quiet, safe, and feels far removed from the frantic pace of the inner city - yet Hangar Lane Tube station (Piccadilly Line) is a five minute walk away and the North Circular/A406 and Western Way/M40 are just a short drive, so it is ideal for busy commuters too. There are local shops by Hangar Lane and Ealing Broadway, with its High Street shops, is a five minute drive away. There are highly-rated primary and secondary schools in the immediate area, including the Montpellier and St Gregory's Primary Schools and senior schools such as the St Benedicts School, Ada Lovelace C of E High School and the Ellen Wilkinson School for Girls. There are plenty of green spaces in the locality including Hangar Hill Park, Pitshangar Park with its riverside walks, Montpelier Park and of course, Ealing Common and the nearby Ealing Cricket Ground, making it an ideal location to bring up a family.
