LOCATION

Tregony is often considered the gateway to the Roseland Peninsula, Noweth Cottage is perfectly positioned a short stroll from the village centre and its many amenities which offers a lovely balance between historic character and everyday practicality.

Once a port, a market town and political borough, Tregony now blends seamlessly with a warm rural village community. For residents (or potential buyers), it offers the tranquillity of village life without sacrificing connection to the wider Roseland area. It's equally appealing as an ideal base for exploring Cornwall's quieter corners.

The Cathedral City of Truro is approximately seven miles distant and forms the main commercial, administrative and retailing centre of Cornwall with some of the county's leading educational establishments. There is a main line rail connection to London Paddington at Truro whilst on the North Coast at St Mawgan near Newquay is the civilian airport with regular flights to London Gatwick amongst other destinations.
