“

From the moment we first saw the plans for 13 Boughton Park, we knew it was something special. Buying off plan as a shell on a self-build plot gave us the rare opportunity to shape the house around our family life – choosing where the walls would go, how the rooms would flow, and creating a home that feels both spacious and effortlessly practical.

The sense of light and space still impresses us every day. With high ceilings and striking two-metre-tall windows throughout the ground floor, the house feels wrapped in greenery, with natural light pouring into every room. It is a bright, calm, and wonderfully uplifting place to be in every season.

At the heart of the home is the kitchen-diner, where we have spent countless happy hours. A comfy chair in the corner provides the perfect spot for a morning coffee with a sunny, south-facing outlook. The adjoining snug, connected by double doors, is ideal for family life: open-plan when you want everyone together, yet easily closed off for quieter moments. The same flexibility continues through to the lounge, which can also be opened up via double doors, making the layout brilliant for both everyday living and entertaining.

We have hosted Christmas for 20, with two long tables running down the kitchen and food spread across the impressive 2.5m island, and there was still room to spare. With doors open between the kitchen and lounge, the house is made for celebrations. Five spacious double bedrooms, plus a double sofa bed in the snug, provide plenty of space for overnight guests too.

Outside, the garden wraps around the house, offering patio spaces to the west and south for morning breakfasts and afternoon barbecues, plus a front lawn perfect for our children to run around with a football. Laurel trees provide privacy, while raised vegetable beds, herb planting, and space for a greenhouse make it a gardener's dream.

*Peaceful, friendly, and surrounded by countryside walks, this is rural living at its most comfortable – and still just minutes from all the convenience of Headcorn, Lenham, and excellent transport links.
