42 CHURCH LANE

DESCRIPTION

Set in a wonderfully private position in Stallingborough, this striking four-bedroom family home sits quietly at the end of a secluded lane, hidden behind mature trees and surrounded by natural greenery. The setting creates an immediate sense of calm and seclusion, with the house only revealed as you arrive along the private drive. Beautiful mature gardens envelop the property, enhancing its peaceful atmosphere and creating a remarkable sense of connection with the landscape.

The architecture takes clear inspiration from the celebrated mid-century modern tradition associated with Lincolnshire architect Rex Critchlow – known for his geometric planning, strong horizontal lines, and sensitive integration of buildings within their landscape. Homes influenced by this style often prioritise light, flow, and connection to the outdoors, with carefully positioned glazing that draws the garden into the living spaces and frames long, leafy views. Distinctive triangular first-floor windows add a quirky and eye-catching architectural feature, further enhancing the home's unique character and design credentials.

This property reflects that same design philosophy: a thoughtful, free-flowing layout designed to feel both open and intimate at the same time. The accommodation includes four bedrooms, with one conveniently positioned on the ground floor, offering excellent flexibility for modern family living. Stylish newly fitted bath and shower rooms bring a contemporary touch, while generous windows, natural materials, and a strong relationship between inside and outside give the home a quiet architectural confidence.

At the heart of the house is a spacious kitchen complemented by a practical utility room and pantry, while two reception rooms provide versatile living and entertaining spaces. A wine cellar adds further appeal, and outside, the mature gardens provide a beautiful backdrop from every angle. The property also benefits from a double garage and ample parking on the private driveway.

It's a home that feels deliberately composed yet effortlessly relaxed – a rare combination of design integrity and family comfort, set within one of Stallingborough's most peaceful hidden pockets.
