Title register restrictions (CL337208):

- The owner cannot sell or transfer the property without obtaining a certificate from the landlord. This certificate confirms that the owner has followed specific rules (Clause 3.21) set out in the lease.
- The lease contains restrictions on 'alienation', which is a legal term meaning the owner's ability to sell, sub-let, or share the property with others is limited.
- The owner is under a legal obligation to give up (surrender) the lease back to the landlord if certain specific circumstances described in the lease occur.
- There are restrictive covenants (legal promises not to do certain things on the land) contained in a 2016 deed involving the local council.
- The ownership does not include any mines or minerals (like stone or metals) under the ground. A previous owner from 1908 kept these rights and has the power to enter the land to dig for them, though they must pay for any damage they cause to the surface or buildings.
