We have tried to make sure that these particulars are accurate but, to a large extent, we have to rely on what the seller tells us about the property. Once you find the property you want to buy, you will need to carry out more investigations into the property than it is practical or reasonable for an estate agent to do when preparing sales particulars. For example, we have not carried out any kind of survey of the property to look for structural defects and would advise any homebuyer to obtain a surveyor's report before exchanging contracts. If you do not have your own surveyor, we would be pleased to recommend one. We have not checked whether any equipment in the property (such as central heating) is in working order and would advise homebuyers to check this. You should also instruct a solicitor to investigate all legal matters relating to the property (e.g. title, planning permission, etc) as these are specialist matters in which estate agents are not qualified. Your solicitor will also agree with the seller what items (e.g. carpets, curtains, etc) will be included in the sale.

This attractive detached family home boasts fantastic kerb appeal and a charming exterior, complemented by a driveway providing off road parking for multiple vehicles. A storm porch leads to the entrance porch and welcoming hallway beyond. The ground floor offers generous and versatile living space, including a dual aspect sitting room with doors opening onto the large lawned rear garden, a bright sun room to the front aspect and a substantial kitchen/breakfast room with further access to the garden, ideal for family life and entertaining. A utility room, rear access into the integral garage, a ground floor rear extension, and a first floor extension over the garage enhance both practicality and space. Upstairs, there are four well proportioned double bedrooms, including a bedroom situated off the half landing which benefits from its own shower cubicle and separate WC. The family bathroom is spacious enough to accommodate a Jacuzzi bath as well as a separate shower cubicle. The rear garden is a particular feature, private and not overlooked, backing directly onto Ocklyng School playing fields with delightful views towards the Downs. Situated in the highly sought after Old Town area, this family oriented location offers excellent school catchments, convenient bus routes and a range of nearby amenities.
