Living & Daily Life

The accommodation has been arranged with everyday life in mind, offering generous rooms that can adapt easily as needs change. The well-equipped kitchen provides ample storage and preparation space, together with room for a breakfast table for informal meals and morning coffee. A separate dining room is ideal for family gatherings and entertaining, while the exceptionally spacious sitting room offers plenty of room to create distinct areas for relaxing, reading or spending time together. Five bedrooms provide flexibility for family, guests and home working, with the extensive additional storage helping to keep day-to-day living practical and organised.

At the heart of the home is the remarkable 35 ft. sitting room, a wonderfully characterful space defined by exposed timbers and a traditional fireplace. Its exceptional proportions allow for several distinct areas, making it equally suited to relaxed family life, quiet evenings and larger social occasions. There is ample room for comfortable seating as well as a dedicated dining or reading area, while the wealth of period detail creates a warm and inviting atmosphere that reflects the history of the house.

Bedrooms & Bathroom

The bedroom accommodation is arranged across the first and second floors, providing five rooms of varying proportions and considerable flexibility.

Three generous bedrooms occupy the first floor, while two further bedrooms are positioned beneath the roofline on the second floor. These upper rooms are especially characterful, with dramatic exposed timbers, sloping ceilings and attractive window details creating warm and individual spaces. The arrangement is ideal for family and guests, with scope to use one or more rooms as a home office, dressing room or hobby space if desired.

The ground floor is served by both a shower room and a separate wet room, the latter fitted with tiled walls, an electric shower and helpful support rails. Several additional cloakrooms are positioned throughout the property, adding further practicality for everyday living and entertaining

Parking & Outside Space

Outside, Plough House is approached across a substantial area of hardstanding, providing generous off-road parking and a practical, low-maintenance courtyard setting. Established hedging and mature trees soften the space and offer a degree of screening, while a timber summerhouse provides an appealing spot for hobbies or relaxation.

Of particular note are three substantial storage rooms extending collectively to approximately 410 sq. ft., offering excellent scope for workshops, household storage or other ancillary uses. The property occupies a central village position, with Woolpit's historic church and everyday amenities close at hand.
