A charming brick and pantile end terrace barn conversion, offering a wonderful blend of character and practical living, set within a lovely rural village location.

The accommodation is thoughtfully arranged with the principal living accommodation set to the ground floor, making it both practical and accessible. The property begins with an entrance hall, which provides access to the main ground floor spaces. From here are two well-proportioned double bedrooms, a family bathroom fitted with a three-piece suite along with a separate shower cubicle, and a staircase rising to the attic rooms.

The spacious living room is a particularly inviting space, enjoying good natural light and a comfortable layout. Centre-opening double doors lead through to the open plan dining kitchen, creating a flexible and sociable flow between the two areas, ideal for both everyday living and entertaining. The dining kitchen offers ample space for dining and is complemented by a separate utility room, providing additional practicality.

To the upper level, the attic rooms offer versatile accommodation, ideal for use as a home office, hobbies room or additional storage, depending on requirements.

Externally, the property is accessed via a shared private driveway serving the development, which leads to the rear of the property. Here there is a spacious gravelled and block paved driveway providing off-street parking for at least four vehicles, along with a lawned garden enjoying attractive countryside views.

To the front of the property, a pleasant raised terrace with brick retaining wall provides an attractive seating area, accessed directly from the hallway.

The property further benefits from oil fired central heating and double glazing.

Egmanton is a highly regarded rural village situated in north Nottinghamshire, surrounded by open countryside and offering a peaceful yet accessible setting. Known for its attractive mix of period properties and converted barns, the village provides a quintessential countryside lifestyle while remaining within easy reach of nearby market towns. The village itself offers a welcoming community atmosphere, centred around its well-regarded village pub and parish church, while the nearby towns of Tuxford and Retford provide a wider range of amenities including shops, supermarkets, cafes and everyday services.

The area is particularly appealing for those seeking a quieter pace of life, with excellent opportunities for walking, cycling and outdoor pursuits right on the doorstep. Despite its rural feel, Egmanton is well placed for access to the A1, providing convenient links to Newark, Retford and further afield, while Retford railway station offers direct services to London King's Cross. A range of well-regarded primary and secondary schools can also be found in the surrounding villages and towns, making the location suitable for a variety of buyers.

This barn conversion forms part of this small development of converted farm buildings. Constructed of brick under a pantiled roof covering, there are wood framed double glazed windows. The central heating system is oil fired with a Worcester boiler. The living accommodation can be described in more detail as follows:
