Charnock Bates

A characterful farmhouse with land, outbuildings, and scope for transformation

Set within approximately 9.2 acres of attractive West Yorkshire countryside, Morton End Farm is a detached farmhouse built in 1780 with adjoining barn, stables, extensive grounds, and grazing land. Offering a rare combination of character, space, and rural setting, the property presents an exciting opportunity for those looking to create a more substantial country home, pursue equestrian interests, or explore the potential for refurbishment and redevelopment, subject to the necessary consents.

The setting is particularly appealing. Open fields, mature greenery, and far-reaching countryside views surround the property, while a stream runs through the land and the grounds attract an abundance of wildlife, including deer, foxes, badgers, and a wide variety of birds.

For equestrian buyers, the existing stable provision, grazing land, and extensive additional space make Morton End Farm especially well suited to keeping horses. There is also a network of field access and a walkway extending across the land towards Doe Park.

The farmhouse itself retains considerable period character, with exposed beams, stained-glass panels, open fireplaces, and a cottage-style kitchen. It is comfortable in its present form but, importantly, offers scope for a new owner to modernise and adapt the accommodation to their own requirements.

GROUND FLOOR

ENTRANCE HALL

A welcoming entrance hall with tiled flooring, staircase to the first floor, and a triple-aspect outlook across the surrounding grounds.

LOUNGE

A characterful principal reception room entered through a timber door incorporating a striking stained-glass panel. Dual-aspect windows overlook the gardens and grounds. Features include exposed timber beams and an open solid-fuel fireplace.

KITCHEN

A cosy, cottage-style kitchen fitted approximately four years ago, with space for a small breakfast table. Dual-aspect windows provide views across the property.

The fitted kitchen incorporates an integrated fridge freezer, Prima oven, induction hob, extractor hood, and sink with drainer.

SNUG

A versatile second reception room with another timber door incorporating stained glass, exposed beams, an electric fire and windows overlooking the garden.

BATHROOM

Fitted with bath, wash basin and WC.

CELLAR

A particularly atmospheric vaulted cellar with recessed shelving niches. An excellent space for storage and with obvious potential as a wine cellar or useful ancillary space.

Gardens and grounds

The grounds and land are a defining feature of Morton End Farm, extending to approximately 9.2 acres and providing a mixture of gardens, grazing land, and open countryside.

The land offers excellent potential for equestrian use, with:

- Stable accommodation for approximately four horses
- Substantial additional barn space
- Approximately 9.2 acres of land
- Grazing and field access
- A walkway crossing the fields towards Doe Park
- A stream running through the grounds
- Ample parking and turning space

The property also includes a detached single garage, detached coal house providing useful storage, and a greenhouse.

There is a former chicken battery hut which requires removal and is understood to contain asbestos.

THE BARN AND DEVELOPMENT POTENTIAL

The adjoining barn is a particularly interesting feature of the property and offers significant potential for conversion or redevelopment, subject to the relevant planning permissions and consents.

Combined with the farmhouse, land, and rural setting, the existing buildings provide an opportunity to create a more substantial family home or a property tailored around equestrian and rural living.

The barn and surrounding land will appeal particularly to buyers seeking a project with genuine scope to add value and create something individual, rather than simply purchasing a finished property.

A NATURAL SETTING

Despite its convenient rural position, Morton End Farm feels genuinely connected to the countryside.

The land is rich in wildlife, with regular sightings of deer, foxes, and badgers, together with an abundance of birdlife. The stream, mature vegetation, and open fields contribute to a particularly peaceful environment.

The combination of land, views, existing equestrian facilities, and development potential makes this an unusually versatile rural property.
