Guide Price £595,000

A fine 16th century house providing a surprising level of spacious accommodation occupying a pleasant village setting along a no-through lane

A most attractive Grade II Listed period home, understood to date from the 16th century, constructed of substantial timber frame beneath a peg tiled roofline, displaying distinctive pargetted elevations to the front.

Believed to have originally formed part of a much larger medieval Hall House, the property retains a wealth of original character features synonymous with its era, including exposed timbers and studwork, Suffolk latch doors, and impressive fireplaces, notably within both the principal reception space and the main bedroom.

Extending to a deceptive 1900 sqft, the much improved and particularly well presented accommodation is spacious and well-arranged over three floors, offering excellent versatility for modern family living. A welcoming entrance hall has underfloor heating and leads through to a generous dining room, which in turn connects to a well-appointed fitted kitchen, the kitchen also has underfloor heating. The sitting room/drawing room is a particularly fine space, enjoying a dual aspect and a wonderfully light and airy atmosphere, centred around a character fireplace. A family bathroom with travertine stone tiling completes the ground floor accommodation.

On the first floor, a central landing with many exposed timbers and wonderful mullion window, provides access to a substantial principal bedroom, complete with period features, alongside two further bedrooms and a stylish recently re-fitted shower room. A staircase rises to the second floor, where two additional bedrooms are arranged, one accessed via the other, creating flexible accommodation ideal for guests, hobbies or workspace.

Outside

Externally, the property is equally appealing. Set behind a traditional low brick and flint wall, a gated shingle driveway provides off-road parking and leads to the detached garage/workshop. The rear gardens are a particular highlight, extending to a generous length and enjoying a high degree of privacy. The grounds are predominantly laid to lawn, interspersed with mature trees and established planting, with a terrace area providing an ideal setting for outdoor entertaining. The backdrop of open countryside and paddocks beyond enhances the sense of seclusion and rural charm, whilst affording splendid views across adjoining paddocks. Within the garden is a delightful summer house ideal as a home office or garden room.
