About The Property

This attractive detached cottage offers a traditional coastal home within the village of Llangrannog and the beautiful shoreline of Cardigan Bay. With parking for around three vehicles, a charming cottage garden and well-proportioned accommodation arranged over two floors, the property provides a wonderful home in this sought-after part of West Wales.

The approach to the property sets the tone, with a gated entrance leading into a front garden filled with planting, established shrubs and a paved patio area that works well as an outdoor seating space. The setting feels characterful and established, creating a pleasant first impression before reaching the front door.

Inside, the entrance opens into the main living area, where the lounge sits to the left. This is a comfortable room with exposed ceiling beams adding character and a feature fireplace providing a natural focal point. A window to the front allows good natural light while maintaining the cottage feel.

A doorway from the entrance hall leads through to the dining room, which offers a useful central space for family meals or entertaining. The room also retains a sense of character with exposed beams overhead and includes an attractive stone archway feature opening through towards the kitchen. This layout allows the dining area and kitchen to connect naturally while remaining defined spaces.

The kitchen sits to the far side of the property and offers a practical working area with a range of fitted units, work surfaces and space for appliances. A colourful tiled splashback adds character, and there is a door providing direct access outside. From the kitchen, there is also a useful utility porch area that offers additional storage and practical space for everyday household tasks.

Upstairs, the staircase rises from the entrance hall and splits into two directions on the first floor, adding an interesting layout to the upper level.

To one side are two double bedrooms along with a shower room. Both bedrooms offer comfortable accommodation with space for bedroom furniture and pleasant outlooks over the surrounding area. The shower room is fitted with a shower, WC and wash hand basin, providing a practical facility for the first floor.

To the opposite side of the landing is the third bedroom, also a double room, which offers further flexible space suitable for guests, family members or home working if required.

Outside, the garden continues to provide an appealing feature of the property. To the front of the house is a paved patio area, ideal for outdoor seating and enjoying the surroundings. The garden then extends to an area of grass with a variety of plants and flowers, adding colour and interest through the seasons.

One of the most appealing parts of the home is the detached conservatory, positioned at the front and overlooking the garden. With glazed panels and doors, this space enjoys views across the planting and patio and works well as a relaxing sitting area or additional dining space through the warmer months. Behind the conservatory, there is also a raised patio area, offering another sheltered spot for seating and outdoor dining. Together, these areas create a pleasant and manageable garden setting that complements the cottage well.

The location adds further appeal, being within the centre of the popular coastal village of Llangrannog (but not on the main road). Known for its sandy beach, cafés and access to the Ceredigion Coast Path, the area offers an enjoyable coastal lifestyle with the wider attractions of Cardigan Bay and the surrounding countryside of West Wales all within convenient reach.

Homes in this location rarely remain available for long, particularly those offering character, parking and garden space close to the coast.

Early viewing is recommended to appreciate the setting, character and potential this appealing coastal cottage has to offer.
