The elegant drawing room is a superb principal reception room featuring an impressive stone fireplace with inset log burner, exposed ceiling beams and leaded bay windows providing dual aspects. An original period door connects to the sitting room, which enjoys garden views and direct access via double doors. Across the hall, the formal dining room provides an exceptional entertaining space with its own stone fireplace and traditional flagstone flooring. An inner hall leads through to study and the kitchen/breakfast room beyond. Rich in character, the kitchen features a remarkable original farmhouse dresser believed to date from the Georgian or Victorian period, together with an impressive fireplace housing a fully operational solid-fuel Rayburn. Modern conveniences are thoughtfully integrated, including granite worktops, extensive cabinetry, twin larder cupboards and quality Neff appliances comprising a hob, double oven and microwave. Exposed beams and flagstone floors further enhance its timeless appeal. Beyond the kitchen, a practical utility and boot room offers excellent storage together with space for laundry appliances and dishwasher. Two wall-mounted gas boilers serve the central heating system. The adjoining snug/TV room provides an additional comfortable family living space with access to the rear courtyard, cottage and garage.

First Floor

A generous dual landing provides access to all bedrooms, bathrooms, a dressing room/nursery and loft storage. The principal bedroom suite is particularly impressive, featuring exposed beams, original floorboards, a handsome stone fireplace and dual-aspect windows. The en-suite includes a freestanding roll-top bath, separate shower, twin wash basins, bidet, WC, heated towel rail and airing cupboard. A spacious guest bedroom also enjoys dual aspects and benefits from its own en-suite bathroom. Of exceptional historical importance, Bedroom Three contains rare surviving wall paintings believed to date from the 16th century, alongside exposed beams that further illustrate the property's remarkable heritage. Bedrooms Four and Five continue the period character with exposed timbers, original floorboards and attractive front-facing views. The family bathroom completes the first-floor accommodation.

History

First recorded in the Domesday Book, Little Loughton Manor has been home to a succession of notable families whose stories are woven into England's history. The earliest recorded owners were the Loughton family, descendants of William the Conqueror. In 1467 the Manor passed to Richard, Earl Rivers, uncle to the Princes in the Tower through his relationship with the wife of Edward IV.

Significant alterations were undertaken in 1570 by Valentine and Anne Piggott, whose initials remain carved into the porch stonework. Piggott's second wife served as Chancellor of the Exchequer under both Elizabeth I and James I. The Manor was acquired by the Crane family in 1612. John Crane supplied the Royal Household and Fleet during the reign of Elizabeth I and, during the Civil War, was fined £1,000 after being captured for failing to reside at the property. Originally constructed as a medieval hall house in the 15th century with substantial additions during the first half of the 17th century, Little Loughton Manor is now recognised as a Grade II* listed building (Reference 1332300). Throughout the house are exceptional period features including magnificent stone fireplaces, original oak doors, mullioned windows, exposed timbers and rare 16th-century wall paintings.
