Situated between Crediton and Bickleigh, with open views stretching towards Raddon Top, Haswells Barn is a contemporary conversion that stands out for both its design and the way it sits within the landscape. Originally part of Haswells Farm, the barn was converted around five years ago and now offers a detached home that balances modern living with the character of the original structure.

The location works particularly well. It has that rural feel, surrounded by fields and open countryside, yet it's not tucked away down miles of lanes. The driveway leads directly off the A3072, making day to day travel straightforward, with easy access to Crediton, Tiverton and Exeter, while Cheriton Fitzpaine is just a short drive for village amenities.

From the outside, the quality is immediately apparent. The combination of traditional materials, oak framing and the glazed gable gives a clear indication of the style inside. The gardens have been thoughtfully landscaped and are starting to mature, with planted beds, climbing greenery and a number of seating areas that allow you to follow the sun or take in the views at different points of the day. Internally, the house is arranged over two floors with a reverse level layout, designed to make the most of the outlook. The ground floor is anchored by a large kitchen and dining space, which feels open and sociable, with plenty of room for everyday living as well as entertaining. We love the AGA too - the icing on the cake of a country property, and this one is total control electric (with remote control) giving the modern touches to a rural classic. The finishes are clean and well chosen, giving a contemporary feel without losing warmth. At the far end of the building sits a generous double bedroom with its own en-suite, offering a comfortable and slightly more private space. A cloakroom completes this level.

The staircase rises through the open space to the first floor, where the main living room is positioned to take full advantage of the glazed gable end. This is a standout room, light, airy and framed by the surrounding countryside, creating a strong connection between inside and out. It's a space that works equally well for quiet evenings or when the house is full. Also on this floor is a second double bedroom with an en-suite, finished with a freestanding bath, adding a slightly more luxurious feel to the space.

Outside, the plot has been kept manageable while still offering a good amount of usable space. There is ample parking and a natural flow between the house and garden, making it easy to enjoy in all seasons.

A real bonus is the detached, semi-converted barn. Currently used as a utility and additional space, it offers clear potential for further development, whether as ancillary accommodation, a studio or a work from home setup, subject to any necessary permissions.

Overall, this is a well executed and thoughtfully designed home. It offers a sense of space and quality that you don't always find, with the added benefit of a convenient rural position and scope to do more if required.
