Bodorwel 1 Efail Wen, Penrhyndeudraeth, LL48 6RA

Resting on the edge of Eryri (Snowdonia) National Park in the picturesque village of Penrhyndeudraeth is this two-bedroom semi-detached quarryman's cottage, Bodorwel, a traditional Welsh stone-built home brimming with comfort and charm. The stylishly decorated quirky property features a cosy log-burning stove, period style kitchen and two generously sized bedrooms. It is unrivalled in its location, being next to the Ffestiniog steam railway. The seating area in the garden offers a brilliant vantage point of the trains passing by from late March to October.

The property itself is steeped in history, with part of the building enjoying a stone-built exterior and dating back to 1851.

Bodorwel is currently operated as a successful holiday let business and could be continued as such, however the property would also be ideal as a permanent residence.

LOCATION
The large village of Penrhyndeudraeth boasts a selection of shops and a variety of restaurants, Post Office and a railway station which takes you along the Ffestiniog Railway. Just two miles away is the celebrated unique Italianate village of Portmeirion, which was the location of the TV show The Prisoner, and is surrounded by sandy beaches and captivating woodlands. The harbour town of Porthmadog is a little further along, where you can journey along the Ffestiniog Railway to the slate town of Blaenau Ffestiniog, "the town that roofed the world". To the north is the pretty village of Beddgelert, which is set around the Afon Glaslyn River and offers craft shops, pubs, tea rooms, restaurants, and an enchanting riverside walk, and it's also located in the stunning Snowdonia National Park, from where you can spend hours admiring the beautiful scenery on foot or by bike. Penrhyndeudraeth is an ideal base for exploring the Llyn Peninsula, Snowdonia National Park and many other places in North Wales
