SITUATION

Perched above the stunning Porthminster Beach, Gwel an Mor enjoys an exceptional coastal position overlooking one of St Ives' most desirable settings. From here, both St Ives and the wider coastline are within easy reach, while at low tide it is possible to walk around the headland to the expansive sands of Porthkidney Beach.

The surrounding coastline is renowned for its variety and natural beauty. Porthmeor Beach, adjacent to the celebrated Tate St Ives, faces the Atlantic and is a favourite with surfers, while the more sheltered waters of St Ives Bay are ideal for families and are often the setting for sightings of dolphins and seals.

At the heart of it all, St Ives offers a unique blend of charm and vibrancy, with its narrow cobbled streets, traditional cottages, independent boutiques, galleries and an excellent selection of cafés and restaurants. The picturesque harbour remains a focal point of the town, still serving local fishing boats and featuring its own sandy beach.

The area provides a wide range of outdoor pursuits including water sports, scenic coastal walks and golf, with West Cornwall Golf Club overlooking the Hayle Estuary located nearby.

Transport connections are excellent, with the branch line linking St Ives to the main London-Penzance railway at St Erth railway station, providing convenient access to the national rail network.

THE PROPERTY

Built approximately 20 years ago for both permanent residents and second home owners this highly regarded development was thoughtfully designed to maximise its exceptional coastal position offering sweeping views across St Ives Harbour The Island St Ives and along the dramatic North Cornish coastline out to sea.

This beautifully presented second floor apartment enjoys a convenient relatively level walk into St Ives town centre placing beaches restaurants galleries and the harbour all within easy reach.
