The accommodation is equally appealing, with a welcoming sitting room featuring a log-burner, creating a cosy focal point for relaxing whatever the season. The stylish kitchen is complemented by two adjoining conservatories, one currently utilised as a living/dining area and the other as a utility and boot room, providing plenty of flexibility for everyday family life and entertaining.

There are three double bedrooms, a three-piece shower room and a further W.C., together with ample storage options throughout. The property is well-presented and offers a comfortable home that is ready to enjoy.

Outside, the grounds are where this property really comes into its own. The large garden leads to separate paddocks, divided into individual grazing areas, while the range of stables and tack room benefit from connected electricity and water. A large hardstanding area in front of the stables provides additional practical space, while the surfaced menage completes an excellent equestrian setup, making this an attractive proposition for those looking to keep horses at home.
