Wellington Street, Covent Garden WC2

Overview

Occupying the third floor of a handsome period building on Wellington Street, this well-proportioned two bedroom apartment offers generous lateral accommodation in one of Covent Garden's most distinctive settings.

Extending to approximately 980 sq ft, the apartment has a particularly well-balanced lateral layout. The generous primary reception room features a broad bank of windows facing south west, natural oiled timber flooring and a well designed integrated workspace providing a useful area for home working without compromising the main living space.

The separate kitchen runs along the Wellington Street elevation and combines extensive fitted cabinetry with integrated appliances and space for a dining table beside the windows. From here there are direct views towards the Lyceum Theatre, a highly recognisable outlook that places the apartment unmistakably within Covent Garden's historic theatre district.

Both bedrooms are comfortably proportioned doubles, with large windows and fitted shutters, served by two separate bathrooms, plus useful storage arranged around the entrance hallway.

The building itself has an unusually rich architectural pedigree. Forming part of Nos. 20–26 Wellington Street, this Grade II listed terrace was originally designed by theatre architect Samuel Beazley and constructed between 1833 and 1835. Beazley's connection to this part of London is particularly relevant, with the Lyceum Theatre opposite rebuilt to his designs around the same time.

Bringing a more contemporary take on the building's long history, the current boutique residential scheme was completed in 2006 and designed by the influential British design practice Design Research Unit, now part of renowned international practice Scott Brownrigg.

The terrace also has an interesting literary association, with No. 26 occupied by Charles Dickens and the offices of All the Year Round from 1859.

From its elevated position above Wellington Street, the apartment sits at the centre of Covent Garden's cultural quarter, with the Royal Opera House, Piazza, Strand and Somerset House all within a few minutes' walk.

Covent Garden residents have access to some of the capital's finest restaurants and retailers, alongside world-class theatres, museums and galleries. The London School of Economics, King's College London and the University of London all have major campuses nearby, while Soho, Mayfair, the City and the South Bank are all within easy reach.

Numerous transport options, including the Underground, Elizabeth Line, mainline rail and river services, make this one of the best-connected parts of central London.

People Make Places

London is a collection of inspiring urban villages and one of the most exciting places in the world to live, work & play.

We work with both property owners and their occupiers, sharing the story of these vibrant neighbourhoods, conveying the unique soul & energy to future custodians, the people who'll keep them buzzing.

And unlike many real estate businesses we're not just about buildings, because streets & buildings don't make a neighbourhood.

We're about building relationships, because people make places.
