The Home...

Ideally positioned within easy walking distance of the mainline railway station, this attractive 1930s 'Mock Tudor' semi-detached house has been dramatically transformed by the current owners, who have undertaken an extensive programme of renovation and extension to create a superb contemporary family home extending to approximately 1,665 sq ft. What was once a conventional interwar semi has been reimagined into a bright, open and highly functional home, while still retaining the charm and architectural character of its period façade.

The house is entered via a welcoming hallway which leads through to the impressive open-plan sitting and dining room at the front of the house. A wide bay window draws in plenty of natural light while an open fireplace provides a cosy focal point, creating an inviting reception space that works beautifully for both everyday living and entertaining.

To the rear, the house opens into a striking extended kitchen/family room, now the true heart of the home. Designed with modern family life in mind, the space is flooded with natural light from large roof lanterns above. The kitchen is fitted with white gloss cabinetry, granite worktops, underfloor heating and a central breakfast bar, providing both a practical cooking area and a sociable place to gather. The adjoining family area offers generous room for seating and informal dining, while bi-fold doors open directly onto the garden, allowing the interior space to flow seamlessly outdoors during the warmer months.

A utility room, cloakroom and internal access to the garage have been thoughtfully incorporated, ensuring the ground floor works exceptionally well for busy family life.

The first floor provides three well-proportioned bedrooms, including two comfortable doubles and a further bedroom that could equally serve as a nursery or study. These are complemented by a modern family bathroom.

The second floor has been converted to create a generous principal bedroom suite, a bright and peaceful retreat with useful eaves storage and a stylish en-suite shower room, set apart from the main family accommodation.

Moving Outside...

Outside, the rear garden is notably generous for such a central location. An Indian sandstone terrace sits immediately behind the house, perfect for outdoor dining, with raised planted borders leading down to a large lawned garden that offers plenty of space for children to play. The garden also benefits from a workshop which is fully insulated with power and lighting, plus a storage shed.

Altogether, the house now offers the rare combination of period character, contemporary open-plan living and a highly convenient location close to the station, making it an ideal home for modern family life.

The Location...

Queens Road is an established residential road of mainly Victorian/Edwardian/1930s homes and enjoys a most convenient location for Haywards Heaths mainline station, which provides fast and regular commuter services to London (Victoria/London Bridge in approx 47 mins), Brighton and Gatwick International Airport.
