The Street, Aslacton, NR15 2JP

Guide Price £230,000-£250,000

1 1 1

Believed to date back to the 1700s the cottage retains many original features including exposed beams, wooden floorboards and a lovely brick fireplace with wood burner. Newly double glazed to the front, it combines traditional charm with modern comforts. The property was completely refurbished in 2012. The roof was taken off and the floors taken up to add insulation to Building Regulations standards. The welcoming living room features windows on three sides, creating a light and airy feel, together with a cosy dining nook. A step up gives access to a characterful kitchen with oak worktops and a traditional butler sink. Beyond is a versatile additional seating or reading area, with a cottage door opening onto the sunny courtyard garden.
