A smart and sizable two bedroom apartment with leafy views sat on the second floor of a low-rise, modern development near Wood Street. You're in a superb spot here, with an on-site gym and a whole host of amenities within easy walking distance. Hawker Place was once the site of a film production studio making silent movies and talkies. It's named after Hawker Siddeley, who built a transformer factory on the site in the 1930s. The area retains its trailblazing spirit, with a new generation of entrepreneurs making the area their own.

IF YOU LIVED HERE...

You'll love the leafy surrounds of your London nest, with lush communal gardens wrapped around the apartment. Inside and your open plan living area comes in at a substantial 235 square feet. Cream carpet flows underfoot, your kitchen area's suitably attired in a flawless suite of white units with grey accents, and there's an abundance of natural light.

It all opens up to a Juliet balcony so you can enjoy the sound of wind whispering through the trees. Elsewhere, there's a secure entryphone system in the hallway and the bathroom's home to a shower over the tub, navy blue accents and a mirrored cabinet. Your bedroom's an immaculate double of 105 square feet.

Outside and Wood Street station's eleven minutes on foot and will get you directly to Liverpool Street in twenty. Walthamstow Central is just one stop along for West End access via the Victoria Line. Alternatively, jump on to the W16 bus for Leyton Midland Road's transport connections. This same bus will ferry you to Addison Road in seven minutes for Walthamstow Village's beautiful, part-pedestrianised streets, historic architecture and a bounty of artisanal shops and restaurants.
