Hill Top House, Shap

Penrith

Having remained within the same family for over 40 years, Hill Top House presents a rare opportunity to acquire a substantial 4 bed, semi-detached period home, ready to embark upon its next chapter. Rich in original character and occupying an elevated position on the outskirts of the desirable village of Shap, this is a home awaiting sympathetic renovation, offering prospective purchasers the chance to create a truly individual residence tailored to their own tastes and lifestyle.

Behind its attractive façade lies a wealth of original features that continue to hint at the property's heritage, including high ceilings, original wooden floorboards, open fireplaces and an elegant staircase. Combined with the generous proportions of the accommodation, extensive outbuildings and sizeable grounds, Hill Top House offers remarkable scope for restoration and enhancement, creating a home that could once again become the centrepiece of family life for generations to come.

The accommodation begins with an entrance vestibule, leading into the welcoming reception hall where the original staircase immediately draws the eye. An understairs storage and cloak area occupies the space where access to the cellar once existed, presenting the opportunity for reinstatement should future owners wish to make further use of this additional space.

To the front of the property are two well-proportioned reception rooms, both enjoying open fireplaces that provide attractive focal points. One features an exposed brick surround, whilst the larger reception room benefits from original wooden floorboards and twin front-facing windows, creating an impressive yet welcoming space for everyday family living or entertaining.

Positioned to the rear is the dining kitchen, a later addition that provides an excellent footprint for redesign and modernisation. We understand that the ceiling damage resulted from a previous leak which has since been repaired. Beyond the kitchen, a rear passageway houses the gas-fired boiler and provides access to the gardens, parking and the extensive range of outbuildings.

Ascending the graceful staircase, complete with its charming half landing, natural light streams through a well-positioned window before arriving at the first-floor landing. Here, four generously proportioned double bedrooms enjoy elevated front-facing views towards the Northern Fells, with high ceilings further enhancing the sense of space throughout. The principal bedroom benefits from a distinctive triple-aspect arrangement, creating an attractive reading nook or seating area from which to appreciate the surrounding outlook.

The first floor is served by both a family bathroom, positioned above the kitchen and fitted with a three-piece suite, eaves storage and a Velux window, together with a separate shower room, offering flexibility for modern family living.

Externally, Hill Top House continues to impress. To the rear, a fascinating collection of traditional outbuildings has served a variety of purposes over the years and currently includes a wood store, store room, utility store and a former first-floor office with adjoining store, accessed via external stone steps from the side yard. Subject to the necessary consents, these versatile buildings present exciting opportunities for incorporation into the main house, conversion to an annexe, home office, studio, workshop or hobby space.

The property's cellar is accessed externally via stone steps adjacent to the former covered outdoor kitchen, providing yet another reminder of the home's rich history.

A generous parking area comfortably accommodates three vehicles, with scope to create further parking if desired. Beyond lies what was once a productive garden centre, now offering a blank canvas for transformation. Although the structures have fallen into disrepair, their removal would reveal an exceptional expanse of garden extending far beyond first impressions, providing endless opportunities to create beautifully landscaped grounds, productive gardens or family-friendly outdoor spaces, all enjoying delightful views towards the Eastern Fells.

Combining elegant Georgian period features with later additions that have allowed the home to evolve over time, Hill Top House is a property of considerable character and exciting possibilities. Ready for thoughtful restoration, it offers the opportunity to breathe new life into a much-loved family home and create an exceptional residence for generations to come.
