Seller Insight

“ We visited 5 Sweets Lane in late Spring and were immediately taken by its beautiful, picturesque presence, especially at this time of year when the garden is in full bloom. It felt like a picture book example of a detached Edwardian home, tucked away along a peaceful lane, with a rare sense of space and calm from the moment you arrive.

We have enjoyed the house as a growing family home with two young children and plenty of space for everyone. During our time here we have modernised and opened up the kitchen to create a kitchen breakfast space that we enjoy each and every day. We also love the triple aspect lounge, which opens directly onto the garden and fills the space with light.

It has been a great home for entertaining, from hosting university friends in gatherings of 40-50 people across the house and garden, to relaxed afternoons with the children's friends running between indoors and out. The large patio has been central, providing a flow between inside and outside living with plenty of space for everyone to gather.

The garden has been transformed. We cleared and reshaped it, creating a children's playground, reclaiming the back area and laying it to lawn with planting and trees. A rose-covered seating area offers a picturesque spot, while the enclosed nature of the garden makes it perfect for our dog. It is now low maintenance, and a peaceful extension of the home.

The setting offers the best of both worlds, with peace and quiet, views of nearby woodland from the front of the house, yet moments from connections. We are a minute or two in the car from East Malling railway station and close to West Malling, making commuting easy while still feeling tucked away. Excellent dog walks locally give a sense of countryside living without compromise.
