A beautifully presented five-bedroom Victorian terrace house with conservatory, private garden and versatile outbuilding.

We are delighted to offer to the market this charming three-storey period property, situated on a popular tree-lined residential street. Retaining a wealth of original character including decorative brickwork, a bay-fronted facade and ornate door canopy the house has been thoughtfully updated throughout to offer bright, flexible accommodation ideal for a growing family.

The ground floor opens into a spacious reception room, filled with natural light from a bay window and featuring an attractive fireplace, built-in shelving, and warm engineered oak flooring. A well-appointed galley-style kitchen with sleek grey gloss units and space for a range cooker leads through to a bright conservatory, opening onto the rear garden ideal for entertaining. A ground floor WC completes this level.

Upstairs, the first floor offers three further bedrooms served by a stylish family bathroom with mosaic feature tiling. The second floor has been thoughtfully converted to provide two further bedrooms — including a superb room with Juliet balcony overlooking the garden along with a second shower room and useful eaves storage.

Outside, a private, low-maintenance garden is laid mainly to artificial lawn and bordered with mature, well-stocked planting. A substantial outbuilding at the end of the garden currently a home gym offers excellent versatility as a garden office, studio, or additional storage
