SITUATION

Strete Ralegh House is a historic country residence located on the edge of the East Devon village of Whimple that is believed to date back from around 1780 and is now converted into private apartments. Located in the grounds are a number of houses converted from the former stable blocks and nearby is this property which was purpose built around 30 years ago.

The nearby village of Whimple has an active community and excellent range of amenities, including primary school, general store and Post Office, two pubs, church and doctor's surgery, along with train station on the Waterloo line.

Ottery St Mary, to the east, offers a good range of amenities, including a selection of independent shops, whilst to the west, the city of Exeter has all the amenities associated with a major regional centre. Transport links are very accessible, the nearby Daisymount junction of the A30 dual carriageway links to the M5 at junction 29 with access to Exeter International Airport. There are also commuter train stations at Whimple and Cranbrook for access to Exeter and London on the Waterloo Line.

DESCRIPTION
