Description

Rose Cottage probably dates from the mid to late 19th century and is seemingly of timber frame and brick construction, with rendered and colourwash elevations beneath a pantile roof. At some point the property was extended to the rear, in a sympathetic fashion, to create the generous accommodation the property now offers.

Rose Cottage offers a spacious and well presented four bedroom period property with the added benefit of a standalone office building and steel portal frame workshops, that occupy a site of nearly half an acre in all. The cottage offers accommodation that extends to nearly 1,800 sq. ft in all, with an entrance hall, sitting room, dining room, snug, well fitted contemporary kitchen, rear hall/boot room and a shower room on the ground floor, whilst on the first floor there are three double bedrooms, a fourth bedroom that is currently used as a study/office and a family bathroom.

The property has the excellent added benefit of a very good and useful range of outbuildings, that offer potential for a purchaser to run their business from the site, as the current vendors have. Alternatively, the buildings could be utilised for additional storage, used for equine or similar, or let out to generate income. The standalone office building could be used as a work from home facility or converted to create ancillary accommodation for a dependant relative, B & B or holiday let accommodation - subject to the necessary consents.

The workshop buildings are of steel portal frame construction that are clad in a mixture of blockwork and cement fibre/asbestos corrugated sheets. Each building has a minimum eaves height of approximately 3.5m. Being a former garage premises, there is a generous concrete driveway that is sufficiently large enough to park numerous vehicles. There is also two separate vehicular access points along the frontage, and therefore the site could be sub-divided if required. To the rear of Rose Cottage is a formal garden with raised beds and with a useful range of timber frame outbuildings, a greenhouse, and also a summerhouse and patio area. Facing in a westerly direction the garden enjoys the sun during the latter part of the day and into the evening. Beyond the workshops, to the east, is an additional area of land that has been used for storage purposes. Being laid to grass, this area could be utilised as a paddock or similar if required.

In all, Rose Cottage extends to approximately 0.43 acres (0.17 hectares).
