A House of Surprising Proportions
There is something particularly appealing about a house that reveals itself slowly — and this handsome four-storey home on Artillery Road Ramsgate offers considerably more than its façade might suggest.

Extending to approximately 1,187 sq ft, the house unfolds across four levels, with four bedrooms, two bathrooms and two distinct living spaces, including a wonderfully versatile lower-ground floor opening directly onto the courtyard garden.

At a Guide Price of £230,000–£240,000, the sheer amount of space on offer is difficult to ignore. For first-time buyers looking beyond the conventional starter home, or a young family wanting a house with room to evolve, this is an exciting proposition.

Inside
The accommodation has a natural separation between living, sleeping and more relaxed family spaces.

The main part of the house provides a comfortable sitting room and kitchen, while four bedrooms are arranged across the upper levels.

Two bathrooms — one with a bath and the other with shower facilities — sit on separate floors, a thoughtful and practical arrangement for family life.

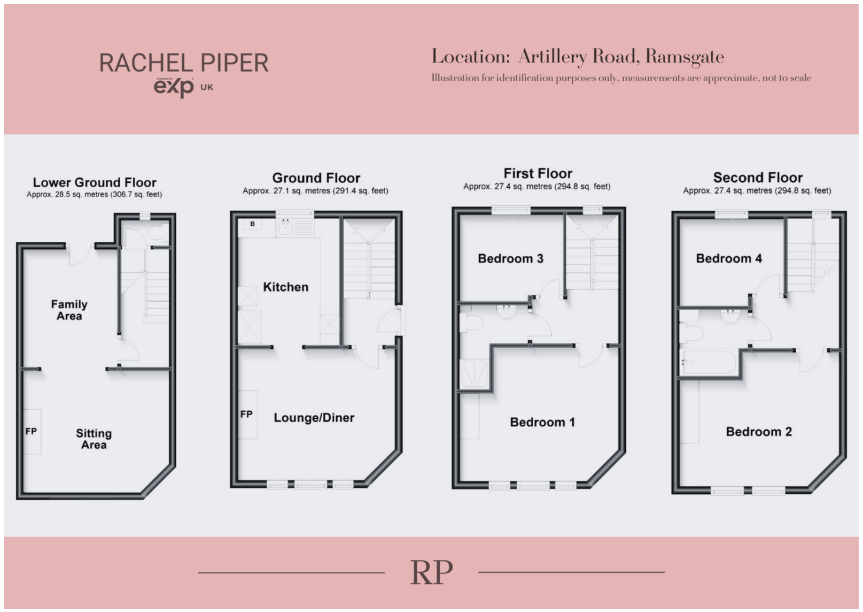

Double-glazed windows add another layer of everyday practicality.

Downstairs, Something Different
The lower-ground floor gives the house another dimension entirely.

Here, an additional family room/sitting room creates a relaxed second living space, slightly removed from the rest of the house and with doors opening directly onto the rear courtyard.
