Area Information

Walsall is a large and well-established market town in the West Midlands, located approximately 9 miles from Birmingham and forming part of the Black Country. Rich in industrial heritage, it was once known as the “town of a hundred trades” and gained worldwide recognition for its leather and saddlery industry.

Today, Walsall offers a blend of history, culture, and modern convenience. The town centre has undergone significant redevelopment and features a range of amenities, including shopping facilities, cafés, and the impressive New Art Gallery Walsall. The area is also home to the popular Walsall Arboretum, a 170-acre green space
