LOCATION

The property is quietly situated on the edge of the riverside village of Calstock, approached over a private driveway and in a south west facing position from which it commands stunning views over the Tamar Valley including the River Tamar itself.

The charming waterside village of Calstock has the usual amenities including a church, pubs, cafes, hairdressers, art gallery and arts chapel with music and events, bus stop and a variety of small shops and a quayside area with boatyard, moorings and access to the tidal River Tamar (Plymouth Sound by boat 15 miles).

The village also has a branch line railway station on the Gunnislake to Plymouth line providing a useful commuter service and links to the mainline (Plymouth to London Paddington 3 hours). This is an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty and in 2006 the Tamar Valley was given World Heritage Status. The rich and diverse landscape of the Tamar Valley AONB covers around 75 square miles (195 square kilometers) with an extensive array of wildlife habitats and meandering rivers together with ancient woodlands and wetlands. Local landmarks include the National Trust's Cotehele House which lies just to the west of Calstock and St Mellion International Golf Resort (about six miles).

The classic Westcountry town of Tavistock is only a short drive and offers a wide variety of facilities including notable boutiques and delicatessens. Saltash has a Waitrose store on its northern outskirts and Plymouth has a large and thriving University together with a long and historic waterfront with many cafes, restaurants, and antique shops centred around the cobbled Barbican quayside. Plymouth also has well respected grammar schools which are readily accessible by train from the village together with a cross channel ferryport providing regular services to France and northern Spain.
