This well-maintained three-bedroom end-terrace offers a particularly practical package, with parking for three cars, a separate garage with power and light and a private south-facing rear garden. The property has also benefited from recent improvements to the kitchen and bathroom, together with a gas boiler installed approximately five years ago and regularly serviced.

Inside, the comfortable lounge has solid wood flooring, a large front-facing picture window and an electric feature fireplace. The kitchen was updated around four years ago and has gloss white units, granite-effect worktops, double eye-level Zanussi ovens, a ceramic hob and integrated dishwasher and fridge/freezer. A breakfast bar provides a useful everyday dining area, while patio doors lead through to the heated conservatory.

The conservatory makes a versatile additional room, with its high ceiling, plenty of natural light, central heating and multiple power points. It currently provides a useful connection to the garden and could work equally well as a dining, hobby or home-working space. Also on the ground floor is an entrance hall cloakroom area and an office/storage space.

Upstairs are three bedrooms, including two doubles and a single with fitted cupboards. The rear bedroom enjoys views towards the surrounding town and hills, while the modern bathroom has an electric shower, vanity storage and heated towel rail. There is also useful loft storage with ladder access, insulation and partial boarding.

Outside, the front garden has been arranged for low-maintenance living, with tiered chippings and steps leading to the house. The enclosed rear garden is private and south facing, with composite decking, raised borders and useful outside storage. The garage has both power and lighting, adding valuable workshop or storage space with parking in front.

With its combination of ready-to-enjoy accommodation, generous parking, garage and sunny private garden, this is a home that offers plenty of practical advantages for modern family life.
